

Bookmark this page

Start of transcript. Skip to the end.

When I introduced the idea of the web browser,

I mentioned that back in the old days, web browsers just showed the text.

Here's an example of one called Lynx.

Lynx was a text-based web browser.

You could, of course, click on links or follow links, choose a link using a cursor, but there were no images.

Later on, and certainly now, web browsers allow us to see images, for

Video

Download video file

Transcripts

Download SubRip (.srt) file

Download Text \(.txt\) file